Supply. When this has been accomplished, the use of unvouchered funds for the purchase of supplies and equipment or services in the field, should no longer be necessary.

I can see to this procedure is the fact that such employees would then be required to pay the amount of Federal tax, since the Government does pay the same cost for transportation over airlines or railroads as a private individual. However, this would be allowed as an item of cost, the same as in the case of using unvouchered funds. Nothing else is to be gained by the use of transportation requests to which there may be some objections for security reasons. This suggestion is made in order to avoid the possible criticism for the use of unvouchered funds for "administrative convenience".
